

The Gender Equality Matters (GEM) Project offers students, parents, teachers and school leaders ways to tackle gender-based violence in schools, families and associated social structures.

The GEM concept offers you:

Awareness-raising abilities about gender and sexuality-based violence and its prevention in classrooms, school communities and families.

Key prevention and intervention skills, empowering you to act when you are a victim, bystander or perpetrator of gender-based violence.

National recruitment events, leaflets, workshops, training modules, a massive online course, and train-the-trainer events.

Are you interested in participating in the GEM project? Please visit www.genderequalitymatters.eu and contact our partners directly. Also befriend us on our social media platforms. Join the GEM community!

Participation in the GEM project is free of cost. All members are requested to participate actively and share their experiences with each other and report the results to the community.

The consortium of GEM partners consists of 5 parties in Ireland, Spain, Italy, Greece and the Netherlands. The GEM partners collaborate with research centres, school organisations, policy makers, NGOs and organisations representing teachers and school heads around Europe. All partners are committed to promoting the GEM philosophy and support children, parents and educators in achieving the goals of the GEM project.

The GEM project is co-funded by the European Union, the 2017 Rights, Equality and Citizenship Work Programme. The project number is 810447.
